

BALTIMORE SOCIETY
THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL INSTITUTE OF AMERICA
THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND 21218

The officers of the Baltimore Society of the AIA welcome you back to an exciting season of lectures, and are pleased to present the 2018-2019 schedule. The meetings will be held in Gilman Hall room 50 on the Johns Hopkins University Homewood Campus. Refreshments will be served at 4:30 p.m., followed by the lecture at 5:00 p.m.

- Friday, September 21 Ludlow Hopkins Baldwin Memorial Lecture
Lissette M. Jimenez, San Francisco State University
"Harm is what befell me, when I was but a child!": Commemorating Children in Greco-Roman Egypt
- Friday, October 12 Gladys Callahan-Vocci-Justice Lecture
Ellen Morris, Columbia University/Barnard College
Surviving the (Pharaonic) State at the Edges of Empire, c. 1350 BCE
- Friday, November 9 Henry T. Rowell Lecture
Jessica Paga, William & Mary
The Old Bouleuterion and Causal Efficacy in Athenian Architecture
- Friday, February 8 Dorothy Kent Hill Lecture
Marden Nichols, Georgetown University
Theater and Painting in Ancient Rome
- Friday, March 8* John Howard Young Lecture
Jorge Bravo
Rustic Religion: Material Remains from the Cave of Pan at Marathon
- Friday, April 12 Kress Alumni Lecture
Hazel Dodge, Trinity College
Going to the Games in Glorious Technicolour: Circus Mosaics and the Realities of Roman Chariot Racing

We will send email reminders prior to each lecture to all of our Members and Friends, but please "like" and follow our Facebook page for updates! (Find us at Archaeological Institute of America – AIA Local Society- Baltimore).

* The Johns Hopkins Archaeological Museum will be open from 4-5 pm (Gilman Hall room 150) on Friday, September 21. Be sure to stop by to see the new exhibition "Who Am I? Remembering the Dead Through Facial Reconstruction" and other artifacts related to our lecture! (<http://archaeologicalmuseum.jhu.edu/the-collection/object-stories/who-am-i-remembering-the-dead-through-facial-reconstruction/>)

The Annual Members' Reception/Dinner will follow the Friday, March 8 lecture.

We look forward to seeing you at our first lecture on September 21. If you have questions, please contact Amy Sowder Koch, akoch@towson.edu.

Sincerely,
Amy Sowder Koch, AIA-Baltimore Society President